Water Tower Project Update

The exterior of the tank has been painted and the Crooked River Ranch Community Logo has been painted on the side of the tank facing the fire station. Now it is time to lift the tank into its final resting place. Landmarks top out crew will be arriving on site July 6th. The top out crew is responsible for placing the access tube, lifting the tank into place, putting down the floor, and putting on the roof. Currently the tank is scheduled to be lifted into place on July 10th weather permitting. This process will take about 3 hours and could be early in the morning when the winds are light. We will be posting updates to the lift schedule on the website and putting it on an email notification as the time comes closer.

The tank is scheduled to be in service in early October. This is a month ahead of the contract in service date.

We will be closed
Monday July 4th in observance of Independence day.

Three applicants for the one open board positions.

For the upcoming fall board elections there are 3 applicants:

Each applicant will have a statement in the July Newsletter and will have a opportunity to speak at the upcoming Annual Meeting.

Ballots will be mailed at the end of September for the election held in October.

Work on the well house and the electrical room will continue for the next few month. The building will be made of precast concrete walls that are textured with a light sandy brown color. The building shell is scheduled to be complete in mid July.

Most of the ground work will be finished in September.
